POETICAL.

The Grave of Clay.

Neath the old homestead's shade, by the trees
that he planted,
The chieftain's sleep at the home that he loved,
The eye dimmed that shone soundaunt,
The tongue mute, that a nation has moved,
Yet, break not his sleeping, tread light where he slumbers,
He rests, may God bless him, with the brave men of yore.
The glory yet lingers in clouds where we saw him,
But our eagle shall flash back the sunlight no more.

Now fail for the hero. How calmly he's sleeping!
We sigh that the grave such bright jewels can claim:
Fair freedom may mourn, there's a smile with her weeping.
As the stars catch the light she reflects from his fame.
There it burns 'mid the heavens, a beacon of glory,
The storm-clouds of faction will blust into lights.
The name and his fame shall be told in her story,
And nerve man to struggle where freedom shall fight.

Let him sleep, let him sleep, 'neath the soft waving willow.

That sheltered him oft in the quiet of home.
Tread the green earth in silence, in life 'twas his pain,
For he died there at rest, where he sleeps in his tomb.

While a pulse beats for freedom he liveth in story.

Look again, drop a tear, as you pass on your way:

Earth hath but one spot in her annals of glory,
So holly to man as the grave of our CLAY!

Alexandria, March 20th CLAUDE.

Who Borrowed my Umbrella?

A bright round dollar once I spent,
For an umbrella, which I lent;

And thought the fellow really meant,
For such he said was his intent,

Buck again to have it sent.

Yet many an anxious hour I spent,
Waiting for that same event;

But wind or weather did prevent,
Or he his promise did repeat;

And oft in storms through out I went,
And ploughed spoils my discontent,

Yet in vain was my lament—

And see! they doctored me.

Rich in perservative argument,
Though very little blandishment,

No doubt to his astonishment,

Through the office to him went;

When back he wrote that accident,

My umbrella much had rent.

He hoped my heart benevolent,

Would never ask equivalent!

Was ever a man so impudent?

Or braver, wilful ev'rything?

Who could I then resent?

To fight I was too corpulent,

Had I been belligerent.

And so myself I did content,

To rhyme my anger to give vent;

And though perhaps not eloquent,

I've told my honest sentiment,

That money's very poorly spent,

To buy umbrellas to the leat.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Slanderer.

The slanderer is a pest, a disgrace, an incubus to society, that should be subjected to a slow castration, then be topped off like a disagreeable excrecence. Like the viper, he leaves a shining trail in his wake. Like a tarantula, he weaves a thread of calumny with a web of wiles, or with all the kind mendacity of hints, whispers, or fountains known. The dead—aye, even the dead—over whose corpses sleep no venomous tongue can wake, and whose pale lips have no voice to plead. And when the scoundrel of the slanderer—

Who wears a mask the Gorgon world abhors

A check of parchment and an eye of stone!

I think it Pollock who says the slanderer is the foulest wretch of sin, whose tongue was set on fire in hell, and whose legs were faint with haste to propagate the lie his soul had framed.

He has a lip of lies, a face forced to conceal,

That without feeling, mocks at those who feel.

There is no animal I despise more than these moths and scraps of society, the malicious censurers—

These ravenous fishes who follow only in the great ships, because perchance they're great.

Oh, who would disarrange all society with their false lying wings. The slanderer makes few direct charges and assertions. His long, vicious fingers point to no certain locality. He has an infinite shrug of the shoulders, can give particular glances,

Over a libel to a frown,

Or wink a reputation down!

He seems to glory in the misery he entails.

The innocent wear the foulness impress of his snatty palm, and a soul pure as Arctic snow twice dolted by the Northern blast, through his warped and discolored glasses, wear a mottled hue.

A whisper breaks the air—

A soft night song and low,

Now right with shame and woe!

Now right to pity perish there,

No father here!

And that—trot!

Wile wretch! ruined of fair innocence by foul slanders, in thine own dark, raven plumed soul

drifted—

Blush—if honest blood a drop remains

To steal its way along thy veins!

Blush—if the brown long hardened on thy cheek

Has left one spot where that poor drop can speak!

THE MARTHA WASHINGTON CASE IN ARKANSAS

By a dispatch from Memphis, we learn that the preliminary examination is over, at least for the present. It has resulted in the discharge of Capt. Cummings, and the holding to bail of the others. Cole and Kissane were held in the sum of $5,000 each, and the others $3,000—Kissane gave bail and was released from custody.

The others, at last accounts, were still in prison, although efforts were being made for their release, and it was supposed that Cole it self, the others, would be able to effect their release.

The dispatch also adds that the child of Justice Neil, who was one of the presiding Magistrates during the investigation, died on Wednesday. We shall probably have the full participation of our issue to-morrow.

Sidney C. Burton, the indomitable prosecutor, is on his way home, via Cincinnati. It is no probability that the trial before the Circuit Court will come on before October.—Cin. Tele.

THE CURIOUS EXHIBITION.—It is said that one of the most interesting departments of the Crystal

Palace exhibition is that which is assigned to lost articles picked up by the police. Among these there are about three hundred lace cambric handkerchiefs, some valued at $50. There are also about as many veils, a large stock of gloves, an extensive assortment of babies' shoes and stockings, and some hundred articles of jewelry, prices of which range as high as $100 in value. Locks of false hair are interspersed with other wearing apparel, and a bottle of brandy occupies a conspicuous position. Specimens of almost anything which is capable of being lost may be seen there.

THE LINE wanted here—and here it is,

Take the line, Don't mind the line.

The Honest Boy.

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little shop boy. He had brought him a dollar that lay among the dust and paper of the sweepings.

"That's right," he said again, "always be honest."

"Should I say that? that honesty is the best policy?"

"Yes, it is a time honored old saying, I don't know about the elevating tendency of the thing, the spirit is rather narrow. I'll allow."

"So grandmother taught me," replied the boy;

"She said I should be right, because God appeared to it, without thinking what you would say."

The merchant turned abruptly towards the door and the thoughtful faced little lad resumed his duties.

In the course of the morning a rich and influential citizen called at the store. While conversing, he said, "I have no children of my own, and I feel sorry for the boy, I should prefer it fixed in habits, and they are bad—"

"Stop," said the merchant, "do you see that lad coming?"

"With that noble brow? Yes, what of him?"

"He is remarkable!"

"What is he?"

"Well, sir, he is a boy who has done well enough before your face. I've tried a good many, and have been more than once deceived."

"I was going to say, 'he is a boy who has done well beyond your face,'

but I wanted to say something else."

"I was going to say, 'he is a boy who has done well beyond your face,'

but I wanted to say something else."

FOREIGN NEWS.

[We have no news from Europe, except such as was brought by the America, which arrived at Boston on the 25th.—We condense her advices, as they contain no news of much interest.]

A British war steamer had approached of the harbor of Sebastopol, and threw in a few bomb shells, but received no reply. A few ships would remain cruising before that port, and the remainder of the allied fleet had sailed to various ports on the Black Sea.

From the Danube there is no reliable news. It is said the Russians would not evacuate Great Wallachia, but will defend Bucarest at any sacrifice. The Russian General proposes to attack Sisilia by water. He is also posting 70,000 troops on the frontiers of Transylvania at Baken, which will compel Austria, to take immediate steps.

It was reported at Paris that Napoleon had written to King Oros, of Greece commanding him to desist from aiding Russia, or he will occupy his kingdom with French Troops, for which 120,000 are already despatched.

The blockade of Greece by the allies is officially pronounced from Athens, under date of the 24 of May. The issue section had again been subdued, but the Russian agents were still busy inciting the people.

Persia has declared against Russia, and demanded the restitution of her captured prisoners, and has entered into an alliance offensive and defensive with the King of Bakka.

Advices from Hong Kong, to the 25th of March says, the Imperial forces have been defeated.

Official accounts are at hand of the bombardment of Odessa. Assuredly the affair was far from decisive, being most destruction but without result.

The Russians fought with extreme bravery, replying to the fire of the ships.

The Russian accounts look as like the truth as the British.

It was reported that for the present the Admirals had abandoned their intention of attacking Sebastopol.

ALARMING STATE OF THINGS. — The Aspinwall Courier, of May 12th, publishes the following extract:

CARTHAGENA, May 8. A resolution broke forth in Bogota about the middle of last month—and the adjacent country, in fact most of the interior, is in a blaze of excitement, and anarchy and the tyranny of a dictator are struggling together.

Gen. Melo has pronounced himself Dictator, at the Capitol.

Gen. Herrera, and most of the National Congress, had fled, and had not, at the last advices, accomplished a reunion.

Gen. Mosquera is in Barranquilla with a force.

Here, in Cartagena, all is confusion worse confounded; divisions existing to every party and class of society, and nothing but weakness and foolish blustering having yet been made in美.

CHARLESTON, May 25. — The steamship Isabel arrived here this morning with Havana dates to the 22d ult.

The Island is peaced very quiet, but the spies and detectives are very active.

The Captain General has given several dinner parties to the French Commodore, and places great confidence in the aid of France in the event of a collision with the United States.

A great Slave Bill was announced to take place. All the French and English officers were invited to be present.

BOSTON, May 26. — The European mail brought by the America were sent South this morning.

Among the documents published at Madrid is a petition from the consignors of the Black Warrior, Messrs. Taylor & Co., to the Queen, praying the remission of the fine of $6000 paid by them to the Cuban authorities.

The European journals express the opinion that the publication of this petition would cause the Spanish Government to release, together, granting any indemnity for the detention of the summer, or in fact agreeing to any of the demands made by the American Minister.

WAR PREPARATIONS AT HAVANA. — The Governor-General of Cuba is preparing to defend himself against the combined forces of the filibusters and Creole insurrectionists. A letter from Havana says:

The artillery companies have been sent to Moro Castle and guns have been mounted on the different fortifications around Havana, and the Governor has at last decided upon arming 4,000 blacks. These troops are to be supplied by whites and the sergeants are to be whites also. By this I judge that the Government cannot rely upon the Spanish white population for official support, or it may be a move to form a nucleus for a black army to convert Cuba into an African possession in case the government of Spain cannot be maintained. These regiments are to come from Porto Rico, which, with the 4,000 black troops, will raise the force here to 18,000.

WHIPPING AN EDITOR. — We understand, says the Cincinnati Commercial of the 27th, that Mr. Bailey, the editor of the Newport and Covington News, was, on Thursday morning, assaulted and severely beaten, while in the office, by a man named Jones, who took umbrage at certain remarks made by Mr. Bailey in his editorial capacity. It is proper to remark that Mr. Bailey is a bold man, weak and sickly, while James is young and athletic. It is understood the case will be taken into the Civil Court.

THE NEWS FROM THE CALIFORNIA MINES. — The news from the California mines are cheering. The dust and the nuggets are found as plentiful as ever, while the establishment of the mint at San Francisco promises to give general satisfaction. But the glut of imports has damaged the course of trade somewhat, and the rents of houses and stores are sinking with the striking of business. — The feverish heat of progress is subsiding apparently, and the pulses of the young State will begin to beat more moderately and healthily.

Old School Assembly.

BUFFALO, May 25. Since our last report the assembly has been mainly employed in considering the judicial case involving the right of a church to secede from its lessers refusing to have their children baptized. The trial was not concluded when the hour arrived for hearing the report of the board of publication. The board have circulated 38,000 books and 26,000 tracts during the year. The value of the books distributed is $139,000. The receipts have increased over the previous year $12,000. The balance remaining in the treasury is $18,000. The board of Domestic Missions reported in favor of building a church at Washington, and recommended the collection of $15,000 to $100,000—adopted.

The report regarding the Danville Society came up, when a warm person at debate commented. Dr. McMasters of Ia. attacked bitterly the action of the committee at the last general assembly, charging that they had improperly suppressed information before them, and induced the assembly to adopt a report which otherwise would not have been adopted.

The fight is between the Danville and McMasters societies, and a warm one is anticipated.

Dr. McMasters had not concluded at the hour of adjournment.

BUFFALO, May 25. The Presbytery Assembly resolved not to send delegates to the German Reformed Church.

The discussion on the Danville Seminary was resumed.

Dr. Beckwith spoke so ably for several hours.

Dr. McMasters replied, and withdrew his amendment.

The report was then adopted.

The house then voted on the place for holding the next meeting. New York, New Orleans, Nashville, Cincinnati, and Pittsburgh were nominated. New Orleans received the largest number of votes, but the Russian agents were still busy inciting the people.

Persia has declared against Russia, and demanded the restitution of her captured prisoners, and has entered into an alliance offensive and defensive with the King of Bakka.

Advices from Hong Kong, to the 25th of March says, the Imperial forces have been defeated.

An Expose of the 'Know Nothings.'

BUFFALO, May 25. Yesterday morning a pamphlet of 32 pages was issued from the press of one of the cheap publishers, and sold at a shilling. It is entitled "The Know Nothing; An Expose of the Secret Order of Know Nothings; the most ludicrous Yankee No-tion ever conceived. By a Know Something, late of the Grand Council."

The author states in the introduction that the objects of the Association have never been made known, as many of the "Know Nothings" themselves are unaware of the ultimate object of the order $12,000. The balance remaining in the treasury is $18,000. The board of Domestic Missions reported in favor of building a church at Washington, and recommended the collection of $15,000 to $100,000—adopted.

LAMBDA

The celebrated Rue Mare and S. will now be seen again in our new commercial stable, in the 4th of July, Danville, Boyle County, Ky.

Believing we have secured the services of a very superior stallion, we invite breeders and admirers of fine horses to call and examine for themselves. We will barely remark that Lambdas is a black bay without a white mark, upwards of sixteen hands high, of great beauty, fine action, and as purely bred as any horse in England. The distinguished filly, Salina, that has never lost a heat, having run at Nashville, Tenn. and at the Fair in Charleston, S. C., was out of the dam of Lambdas. She was exhibited at the great Agricultural State Fair in Georgia, and was awarded a silver cup, as an evidence of his superiority. Particulars in
